This may seem ludicrously simple, but once you have the accent of the beat down, you use your natural strumming motion to fill in the blanks. Those of you who have read the articles on strumming here, particularly the first article of the Getting Past Up and Down you know that keeping your strumming motion constantly going helps you keep the beat in a steady manner.

Regardless of all the modern day diversity brainwashing like the phony Tuskegee "Red Tails" black fighter pilot tall tales,* few blacks actually took part in any real WWII combat. Mostly they loaded deuce and a half trucks in the "Red Ball express." A few did man artillery battalions closely commanded by White officers because it was too dangerous to let them do any targeting.
